

One of the largest sources of strength for a child is the love of a father!

But, not all children get to experience the love of a father.

Imagine a world where children are afraid of their fathers or have never met their father. At Children's Hope Alliance, foster parents, staff, and extended family members become the parental figures for these youth. They try to fill the void these children experience because they have no one else.

It's our hope to train these children to make good choices and do the right thing, just like Proverbs 22:6 asks us to do. If we don't heal their hurts and care for these children now, society could end up paying for them later.

Train up a child in the way he should go; even when he is old he will not depart from it.

— Proverbs 22:6

Please consider making a gift today or providing a home to show children that no matter what their individual circumstances are, their Heavenly Father cares about them. Your continued support means the world to the children and families we serve. Have a wonderful Father's Day!

meet AARON

Aaron has lived in many kinship placements and has experienced physical, verbal, and emotional abuse in the different homes of his relatives. During his last placement, he witnessed his father overdose on opioids.

After this traumatic event, Aaron was moved to a safe environment.

Aaron's life experience has taught him that adults are not trustworthy and usually cause him pain, and this is one focus of his treatment at CHA – to believe the adults in his life will take care of him.

Child's name and photo have been changed for his protection, but his story is very real.

Though my father and mother forsake me, the LORD will take me in. –Psalm 27:10
